

ENLARGING THE PINTSCH PLANT

The improvements planned at the Pintsch gas plant in Ogden consist of an entire remodeling of the plant. The old iron retort system, which has been used since the establishment of the factory, is to be replaced by the more modern and economic method of gas making known as the generating system. By the old system the plant had a capacity of 48,000 cubic feet of gas per twenty-four hours, and by the improvements the generating power will be increased to 150,000 cubic feet. This increase in capacity is made without increasing the actual size of the plant. The change was made necessary because of the increasing demand for gas by the Harriman and Denver & Rio Grande railroad systems. The Pintsch company has made no effort to furnish lighting material to any parties other than the railroad companies, the entire output being used for stocking the gas tanks of the passenger coaches of the two systems.

The installing of the generating system will necessitate the placing of a new boiler and engine, of a huge generating apparatus, consisting of three upright tanks and of almost entirely new piping throughout the plant. In addition to this, it is planned to make a number of improvements in the building itself. New windows are to be placed in the structure and a new roof will be placed over a great part of the factory.

No time will be lost in the change from the old to the new system. While the plant just at present is in a rather chaotic condition as a result of the improvement work, Mr. Lochhead, the manager, states that within two weeks everything will be in shipshape again.

You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop dragging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quickly and quietly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. B. Robinson, 4420 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

ATTEMPT TO ROB THE TROY

An unsuccessful attempt was made to burglarize the Troy laundry on Wall street Friday night. The thieves, in order to darken the laundry office, disconnected the electric current and this move which no doubt appeared a tactful one to the robbers, gave the alarm which prevented the robbery.

In the wiring of the laundry, the same wires that feed the lights in the office also furnish the power for the lights in the electrician's home. When the lights were cut off in the office the electrician's residence was darkened. An alarm was sent to the police station by telephone. An immediate investigation showed that a window of the laundry had been forced open. In some manner the thieves had made their escape.

While there was evidence of the intruders having been in the office, nothing of value was missing.

NEGLIGENCE CLAIMED BY THE RAILROAD

In the case of Nora A. Kyne, by her guardian ad litem, P. C. Kyne, against the Southern Pacific railway company, the defendants have filed an answer generally denying the allegations of the complaint and claiming contributory negligence on the part of the minor plaintiff.

The suit was brought for damages from the defendant company for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained April 6, 1910, by Nora A. Kyne while she was crossing the railroad track at Lakeside with a bucket of water, being run over by a train. The complaint alleges that the child's right foot was so badly injured that a part of it had to be amputated.

GREAT BILL AT THE ORPHEUM TONIGHT

Unless all signs fail the vaudeville bill at the Orpheum tonight will be the most pretentious program the vaudeville kings have sent to this city since the theater opened. Some of the most expensive features ever brought into the vaudeville field will have a place on the new program next Sunday, and the claim of the management that money has been poured like water to procure these attractions is likely to be accepted by every theater-goer who turns his steps toward the Ogden Orpheum next week.

"High Life in Jail," a travesty by Ren Shields, broadly burlesquing the daily routine of the prisoners who are compelled to dress in stripes, will be a clever and amusing feature of next week's Orpheum bill. Each of the convicts is permitted to have his garments cut according to his own fancy and to follow his own ideas in the way of diversions. In this prison, the banker, the millionaire financier, his secretary, the crook trusty and other inmates enjoy themselves with song, story and impromptu entertainment. In fact they possess all the privileges of an up-to-date country club, including a private cafe, billiards, pianos and golf. Wm. H. Sloan and W. H. (Bill) Mack impersonate the two principal roles, and associated with them are Frank De Groat, Nelson Doyle, Charles Smith and Joe Schwab. Ramones, the Egyptian Wonder Worker, will appear in his Temple of Mystery, an erection of picturesque and gorgeous character, in which he performs a variety of startling feats. The London Daily Telegraph declares that "his performance seems to suggest a league with the evil one, and that had he lived a couple of centuries ago he would have been bundled without ado to the stake." The many things he does savor exceedingly of witchcraft, two in particular, the sacrifice of the Fire Goddess and his own eclipse and resurrection. The Goddess in her most splendid raiment is consumed by real flames of fire in full view of the audience, and from her charred bones Ramones restores her to life. The eclipse and resurrection of Ramones baffle description. The marvel of them can only be realized by the spectators.

Zellah Covington and Rose Wilbur will present "The Parsonage," a play in which these two clever artists represent seven different characters in as many scenes, varying from the simple minded country girl and boy to the wayward girl who has strayed from home, the villain and murderer and the detective. Mr. Covington and Miss Wilbur change their costumes with marvelous rapidity, and it is difficult at first for the audience to credit the statement that two persons supply the entire performance. "The Parsonage," it should be mentioned, is the composition of Mr. Covington, who has met with considerable success as a dramatist.

Williams and Warner are grotesque even in their billing, as they announce themselves as "direct from Yarrup." They are French musicians and comedians, and their versatility is shown by the fact that they perform with equal skill on the trombone, xylophone, saxophone, violin, viola, harmonica, piston and various other musical instruments. Not content with excelling with these, they have invented a new one they call "The Claphophone," and they also introduce an "organ" with a human voice, another of their conceptions.

Arthur Bowen, the singing cartoonist, is a versatile entertainer and a clever crayon artist, and his combination of black and white art, with songs, is most attractive. Mr. Bowen is a newspaper cartoonist of wide reputation, and the sketches he presents on his canvases are especially meritorious, although his singing voice is so exceptionally good that this portion of his offering would win applause alone, even though his artistic draughting were entirely eliminated. The two together, each well done, a unique combination. Harry La Belle, billed as the "Athlete Extraordinary," has an act quite different from the usual acrobatic acts seen on the stage. His offering is entirely new and will be a delight to all Orpheum patrons. New kinodrome pictures and a good musical program will complete a most pleasing bill.

Chas. T. Hicks Clay Company

Dear Sir:

After a personal examination of the company's property and a test of the kaolin, both chemical and physical, I do not hesitate to say that it is the best kaolin deposit in the world. The enormous depth of this deposit and its freedom from water, makes it one of the most ideal mining propositions I have ever seen. I was in St. Louis April 15th, and saw your refined clay from samples of the crude you had sent there to be tested, and heard it pronounced by experts to be superior to the best English clays and without a peer.

It shows greater plasticity than any other kaolin ever discovered, and this alone places it in a class by itself. The molecules in this kaolin are less than one half the size of the finest English clays, thus making it the finest grained and purest structure the best paper clay. It is as white as snow, and is perfect in texture and color. I have positive assurance from a St. Louis firm that they can dispose of 10,000 tons the first year and can double this the second year.

(Very respectfully yours)

Chas. T. Hicks

SEEKING PARDON FOR EVIL DOER

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Philip Barckuss, a wealthy Alaskan, has passed in Chicago on his way from the Klondike to New York long enough to attend to a matter which he says has been on his mind and conscience for two years. He is seeking a pardon for Isadore Fried, who is serving a sentence of ten years in the penitentiary.

Two years ago Mr. Barckuss stopped in Chicago and Isadore Fried drugged him and robbed him of $3,000. It is for this misdeed that he is serving his sentence now. Barckuss put him where he is today and Barckuss plans to rescue him. "I see him in my sleep," said Barckuss, who stood facing the prisoner yesterday in the penitentiary. "For two years I have not slept," said Barckuss. "That is why I have stopped to undo that work of mine two years ago."

ARIZONA HAS THE OREGON PLAN

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 29.—After more than two weeks of deliberation, the legislative committee reported that initiative and referendum proposition to the constitutional convention today, leaving the percentages to be decided by the convention. The form reported differs in no important respect from the Oregon plan and makes direct legislation applicable to cities, towns, and counties, as well as the state. The executive committee was expected to report the recall proposition later today, but, like the direct legislation proposition, it will go to the printer before the debate is begun. The proposition provides for recall of any public officer. A stirring debate is expected as many members oppose the application of the recall to the judiciary.

It was several hours before aid could reach the unconscious boy, the rescuers arriving just as the rising tide was about to wash him out to sea.

FRANK JENNINGS IS KILLED BY A FALL

Salt Lake, Oct. 29.—Mrs. F. G. Jennings, 537 Fifth East street, received a telegram Thursday announcing that her son, Frank Jennings, had died on the operating table in Steptoe hospital, Ely, Nevada, last Wednesday night.

Mr. Jennings, who was 29 years old and married, was hurt by a fall while repairing rolls in the McGill concentrator. While he was at work some timbers fell from above and knocked him off his precarious perch, causing him to tumble headfirst against a sharp edge pulley wheel. A deep gash was cut in his forehead and his skull was severely fractured, part of it pressing down on the brain.

He was hurried to the hospital, where surgeons did everything possible for him, but he died from hemorrhage of the brain. His brother, Walter Jennings, was with him, being also an employee of the McGill concentrator. Telegraphic advices to The Tribune from Ely said that the entire camp was plunged into mourning over the accident and that many expressions of condolence were being tendered Walter Jennings. Frank Jennings was efficient and industrious, having hosts of friends.

death message came, as the earlier telegram had merely stated that he was seriously injured, and she had been hoping that this message overestimated his injuries.
